The Kershaw Identity Offers Users a Unique Look & Top Function

- A knife with a look that's as individual as its owners

TUALATIN, OREGON— Users who want a knife that stands out from the crowd, will appreciate the new Kershaw Identity.

With its black-and-grey coloring, the Identity has a tactical look. But it's a tactical look with a difference. The broad drop-point blade flows into the patterned handle, which tapers to a slim end. A larger bolster and the unusual texturing on both sides of the handle enable a users hands to lock in securely as they grip the knife.

In keeping with its name, the pattern on the handle scales is inspired by a unique part of a person's identity—the fingerprint. Concentric fingerprint-like circles give the Kershaw Identity a distinctive look as well as enhancing grip. The blade is 8Cr13MoV stainless steel for good edge retention and easy resharpening; black-oxide coating makes it non-reflective, too.

The blade opens quickly and easily with SpeedSafe® assisted opening and the built-in flipper. The handle is steel with a textured glass-filled nylon front scale and machined texture on the back, too. A frame lock makes blade lock up easy and secure.

The knife's deep-carry clip is left/right reversible and makes the Identity especially discreet to carry.
