Integrated Precision: UTG's New Recon Flex Bipods

UTG recently introduced their long awaited Recon Flex bipod series and they are changing the game. Bipods can be heavy and cumbersome that many have opted to leave them off of their rifles in favor of more simplistic means, such as, simply propping their rifle on top of their pack. The Recon Flex saves on the weight and eliminates bulky mounting bases by fully taking advantage of direct attachment at the 3 and 9 o'clock positions of long guns equipped with either M-LOK® or Keymod handguards. The bipod legs unlock, rotate, and lock into place within its 5 position bidirectional base via an easy to use spring-loaded locking ring. This base allows for both forward and rearward stow away positions along with 90 and 45 degree deployable positions and with the legs being adjustable in length (center height adjustable from 5.7"-8.0"), makes for an ideal bipod for a variety of different long gun applications. Each individual leg features locking retention thumb wheels that secure whatever height adjustment you make to them.
