the silencer has been integrated as part of the rifle instead of being added to the muzzle at the end of the barrel.

This construction allows the silencer to cool down at a much quicker pace due to its exterior surface being considerably larger than that of a conventional silencer. The contour of the barrel and silencer has been designed as a so-called "bull-barrel" which gives the R8 its signature look.

The R8 Silence is currently available in only .308 caliber. It does, however, come in two very attractive versions. The first option 1 is a matt-black receiver and beautiful walnut stock in wood class 4 that is adorned with a Bavarian cheek piece and double rabbit. The second choice is the R8 Silence Black Edition which combines an extravagant walnut stock in wood class 7 with gold-colored trigger and bolt head, making the R8 Silence Black Edition a handsome companion.
