

traser swiss H3 watches presents:

the P96 OdP Evolution – the reinterpretation of a classic

Since 1989, when traser launched the world's first self-illuminated watch, the brand has been appealing to people who expect more convenience, ruggedness and style from their watches. The latest shining example of these qualities from the Swiss watchmaking company is the P96 OdP Evolution that pays tribute to the "Outdoor Pioneer" classic.

When adventure beckons – whether it's hot, cold, bright, or dark outside – it is high time for the new P96 OdP Evolution. The debut by traser is exactly the right companion for adventure seekers; it is unconditionally functional and stands out with good looks!

The watch belongs to traser's Tactical Adventure collection and fulfils every need that adventurers and outdoor enthusiasts can expect to face in any situation – be it a sandstorm during a desert rallye, sub-zero temperatures while ice fishing or a cloudburst on the way home through the urban jungle. The rugged P96 OdP Evolution can handle any challenge with ease. Inspired by the athletic and tactical activities of their wearers, they are available in camouflage colours: petrol, grey, black and green.

Thanks to the proprietary trigalight self-illumination technology, they deliver crisp readings of time even in total darkness and difficult light conditions. The trigalight self-illumination technology consists of tiny glass pipes coated with zinc sulphide and then filled with tritium. What's so spectacular about this is that trigalight will continue to shine brightly for more than ten years, completely without external power.

The P96 OdP Evolution is available with a chronograph movement or a three-hand calibre. Its movements are protected by an impressively robust glass-fibre reinforced polymer case — straps in various hues coordinate with the subtle colours of the dials.
