

LONGTHORNE 'BOXLOCK' TRIGGER PLATE RANGE

Longthorne Gunmakers based in England, have recently completed their trigger plate boxlock range, this has been developed, and made in Great Britain over the past year despite the confines of COVID 19 and incorporates their innovative patented barrels (game or sporting) together with several other features all developed and made in-house including Longthorne chokes (extended and flush), adjustable comb mechanism and recoil pads.

Smooth to shoot with minimal felt recoil and muzzle flip and proofed for superior steel with 3" chambers, corrosion resistant interior components, and adjustable trigger, their ever-expanding range offers a lower cost alternative to their true sidelock models, they come in several styles to suit most tastes and disciplines including several side plated designs which include a fitted stock.

Marketing Director, Elaine Stewart stated 'We are really very happy with this range, it's taken a while to pull it all together especially given the current situation, we have made lots of design improvements along the way, and we believe the finished product has been worth all the effort, we hope customers do to!!'

As an added benefit, if required, their 12g boxlock action can also accommodate 16g, 20g, and 28g barrels as an option to make a multi barrel set.

The range currently consists of 9 different models which the company are continuing to expand. Their entry level 'square back' Sporter starts at around £9995 (+ UK vat if applicable) and sideplated models start at £18329.00 (plus UK vat if applicable)
